

About the Authors

Silicon Valley natives and technology professionals Crystal and Jason Melendez were motivated during their own wedding planning adventure to research the many convenient but often unknown ways that today's technology can assist an engaged couple. In addition to co-founding and developing WedShare.com, which has grown to be a top wedding website service provider and a leader in online planning tools, the newlyweds-turned-business partners are active members of the wedding industry and passionate about showing other couples how to plan and pull off their big day with minimal cost, hassle and stress. Crystal and Jason live in San Jose, California where they continue their writing and development.

